VOIP - telephony that saves you money

eTime is a registered VOX reseller (Dealer Number - 500250).

+ What is the difference between VOIP and normal telephone calls?

Normal telephone and cell phone calls are billed according to the time you use the telecommunications infrastructure for that specific call. Your voice is carried by means of analog signals and only one person can use that line at any given time. For this reason it is expensive to phone someone by means of the normal telephone system.

VOIP (Voice Over Internet Protocol) telephone calls are billed according to the data transmitted while you make the call and not according to the time you spend on the line. Your voice is converted into digital signals (data) and transmitted over your internet connection to the person you communicate with. Your voice data is transmitted with other data over the same network and it does not require a point to point connection, therefore the cost saving by using VOIP.

Most of the time the 'last mile' connection will be to a normal telephone or cell phone line. In this case your call will not be free because you have to pay to be connected to the person who does not have a VOIP phone. For this reason VOIP to VOIP calls are 'free' (you only pay for the data used to make the call and this cost is very low). Typically a 1 hour VOIP to VOIP call will cost you about R 2-00 to anywhere in the world.

Currently more and more people and businesses are converting their telephone systems to include VOIP and soon most people will be available on a pure VOIP telephone connection.

+ Will I save money on telephone calls?

- + VOX to VOX or any 087 number is free.
- + VOX to Telkom national calls are 20% cheaper than from Telkom to National Telkom.
- + VOX to Cell phones are 16% cheaper than from Telkom to cell phones.
- + VOX to international calls are 60 to 80% cheaper.
- + On average our clients save 20% on their telephone accounts by using VOX.
- + Telkom to Telkom local calls are still cheaper on the Telkom network and we do not recommend using VOX for local calls.
